About the Instructor:

Margaret Meush brings a life-time of practical and theoretical experience and expertise to this work-shop. Margaret began her career as a Registered Nurse delivering health care at the grass roots level; later moving into education and training of nurses in her role as an Asst. Director of Nursing Education, and then into administration in quality assurance and systems management.

She holds a certificate as a qualified Lead Assessor for ISO 9000 System and achieved the initial accreditation status for a Regional Health Authority. Margaret has successfully developed and implemented a Quality Assurance Management Program for a 585 bed long-term care facility, as well as successfully achieved ISO 9000 status for a smaller family business. Margaret is the author of a book entitled Quality Assurance Program Development: A guidebook to Maximizing Resource Utilization and Successful Management. In 1992 she graduated from the University of Manitoba with Bachelor of Arts Degree with Distinction with a major in Psychology, and minor in Sociology. In her retirement Margaret successfully completed a tax course and is comfortable discussing taxation issues.

In addition to her academic qualifications, Margaret has significant practical experience in presenting workshops on quality management, standards and accreditation matters. She is a passionate and compassionate person who, upon seeing a need, makes a careful and methodical assessment of the situation, charts a course to address the need, and puts that plan into action.

Are you prepared for the possibility that something may suddenly happen (an accident illness, loss of memory, or even death) which could leave you unable to communicate wishes and important bits of information to your family members?

Important information such as banking information, passwords, desires with regard to funeral, or location of wills, could become significant sources of stress if family members do not know where this information is, or if it is even written down.

This seminar will provide participants with a comprehensive resource for organizing one's personal wishes and information in a non-threatening, user-friendly manual.

This 2 hr seminar is geared at helping a person organize their personal information and wishes, and in turn ensuring that family members have this information at their finger-tips, thus reducing stress at a very stressful time.

This is NOT about will preparation, funeral or financial planning. Recipients receive a comprehensive formatted 'user-friendly' binder, which allows additional material and information to be added easily. By the end of this workshop you will have the skills and know-how to give you (and your family) peace of mind if something should happen to you, and you will have the confidence that they can carry out your wishes and not miss anything that is important and of value to you.

Individuals who wish more information, or to ask questions about the workshop, please contact Margaret directly at emmerik88@gmail or phone 204-239-1919.
